FOR PARTY DIVISION

Is There a Changed Condition of Affairs in Utah?

A. T. HEIST ANSWERS THE QUERY

He Brings to Light Liberal Evidence That the Evolution Has Been Going on for Some Time.

The Liberal and People's political parties in Utah never should have existed. The at once. The contract for the building of and only excuse for the existence of the Motive has nought to do with the right or wrong of the act; motive is an ingredient only in the measuring of the ethical standing of the moral agent. The right thing for the members of the People's and Liberal parties to have done long ago would have been to divide on questions of civil polity. The members of the People's party then were doing the right thing when they disbanded their party, and you Liberals, who refused to meet them half way and insisted on presenting a solid front antagonistic to the church as a church organization, were thereby using the strongest influence in your power to prevent the Mormon people from doing the right thing; that which you have been pretending to want them to do for twenty years.

Mould you prevent a man from paying

To this I reply that the only fair test of sincerity which can be made must be made under reasonable circumstances. In other words, you should do the right thing yourself before pretending to judge the motives of others. You should during the period of probation at least desist from using your strongest efforts to force those in probation to do that which they ought not. Then judge them fairly. Don't say if they are evenly divised that it is a trick for state-heed, and because they do the sensible thing of choosing between evils, that the church dictated the course. Honest judges never say "You are damned if you do and damned if you don't." It is also arged that the continuance of the Liberal party is necessary as a bulwark against premature statehood should this division movement prove a Mormon trick. This I also deny.

You Liberals should have encouraged your former political eneosies in doing the rational thing for you to have done, or yet to de, would be to keep up an antistatehood organization which would have energit thing by doing it yourselves. Then if you really feared premature statehood the rational thing for you to have done, or yet to de, would be to keep up an antistatehood organization which would have tempt to answer. I had osen in the terri-tory but a few years and had to confess that I had seen no change. I had seen the Mormons endorse on the labor ticket men who were not of their church. I had seen a strong minority of Gentiles elected to the city council by Mormon votes, when they could have elected every man of their own church. This convinced may but the two were strong minority of Gentiles elected to the city council by Mormon votes, when they could have elected every man of their own church. This convinced me that they were but wanting an opportunity to lay down their arms whenever they could without panGER of DISTRANGUES OF DISTRAN

DANGER OF DISFRANCHISEMENT or kindred wrongs. I compared the acts of the Mormons on voluntarily giving Gentiles a minority representation with the Tibes a minority representation with the control of the Mormons of from the Mormous their legally elected minority in the same council, and I became convinced that the name Liberal when applied to the Liberal party was a misnomer. After the election, when I had recovered from the effect of excessive invectives from the effect of excessive invectives heaped upon Democrate, I began to look for the time of the "changed and rapidly changing condition," and began my search in the Tribune files, as that is the only reliable authority on changed conditions. It is said of Mr. C. C. Goodwin in a Tribune report of one of his speeches in the campaign of 1820, that "he dwell on the changed conditions." I therefore concluded the change must be farther back and I was somewhat surprised to learn that the Democrats were not the first to notice this ocrats were not the first to notice this

In the Tribune of January 1, 1889, I found these words: "The delusion that there is a class of men here who are so surrounded by divine protection as to make them independent of the law has altogether vanished. The other delusion

In the Tribune of January 1, 1889, I found these words: "The delusion that there is a class of men here who are so surrounded by divine protection as to make them independent of the law has altogether vanished. The other delusion that a certain few have been given a divine right to rule is swiftly vanishing."

The change was still further back and lotte my the conduction of January 1, 1888, these words:

There is just one little cloud, not bigger than a man's hand, in the borizon of Utah this bright New Year's morning. We believe that the cloud will juss away before it expands and takes on the look of a real storm.

By the beginning of the new year Ogden will have added to her list of municipal buildings, a new city jail and police court, city hospital and two fire stations. Work has already begun on the new jail and the erection of the new fire stations will begin at cone. The courtact for the building of the city hospital is to be let to-morrow.

Likewise, the death of one party terminated the excuse as well as the necessity for the existence of the other.

It is my purpose to answer concisely every objection that has been urged against the movement for a division on national party lines. The first objection was that the Mormons were acting in bad faith, and that the issue for or against division was simply a question of good or bad faith. I assert that with no rational man could it be a question of good faith or bad motive. Motive has nought to do with the right or wrong of the act; motive is an ingreditation of the contracted of brick and ornamented with sone trimmings.
